(一) Barcelona in Spain is the twentieth most popular city in the world, and the number of tourists just keeps growing, from 27 million in 2010 to more than 34 million in 2016. However, as people keep flying to the city, many locals want tourists to leave. Some of them even put up signs on the streets to keep tourists away.

In the early years, most locals welcomed tourists warmly because money came along with them, and it helped local people have a better life. These years, although more tourists bring more money to the city, these businessmen from other cities get most of the money. What the locals get is trash, noise, terrible traffic, and rising cost of living. Life for people in Barcelona is getting more difficult and expensive.

Yet, kicking tourists out of the city is not the answer. A better way is to push the local government to take these problems seriously and work together to fix them. They can, for example, try to get tourists to visit or stay in other places near the city, so there will not be too many people in the center of Barcelona. This way, tourists can still enjoy their trip. After all, most locals still need tourists to make a living.

(D) The local government should help the locals make a living from tourists.

(二) Hi, Peter

How are you doing? I want to tell you about something cool I saw on the street the other day. I was walking home from school when I saw a group of people gathered around these strange-looking posters. Each poster had a picture of a clothes hanger on it, and at the bottom there was a slit for people to hang old clothes. These were second-hand clothes for homeless people. It was a pop-up street market, and we can put clothes we didn't wear anymore. Homeless people could then go there and "shop" for free clothes.

What a great idea, right? It's called the Street Store. I checked it out online. It started in South Africa, and the people behind the Street Store are trying to spread the idea around the world. You can sign up on their website(<https://www.thestreetstore.org/>) and get all the poster designs or information packs for free! Maybe you could start one in Taiwan!

Hope you're well!

Love Anna

Hi, Anna

Great to hear from you. That sounds like a great idea. In fact, my cousin does something similar in Taiwan already. He's part of a student group called "Share", and they hold events for homeless people. Thanks for telling me the information. Maybe I could start my own market. I'll let you know how it goes!

When the branches grow tall enough to hit the sun, they flower and grow apples. When you have the right number of apples, you pass the level. The higher the level you get to, the more difficult it is for you to grow apples.		About the Game The game might look like Candy Crush, but each level ends with a fight with a busy bee. If you finish the level, you'll face the busy bee. The more moves you left when you finish the level, for example, the more points you will get to help you catch the busy bee. So you'd better play wisely at each level.
